

Experienced Slaughterman/Foreman - Plant Operations Specialist in Beef & Lamb

Melbourne western suburbs based

A-Grade Slaughterman

Our company develops processing technology for the red meat industry, as well as providing ongoing customer support and consulting services. The Plant Operations Specialist, under the direction of the General Manager for Operations, is responsible for general training of our client's plant personnel in the operation and methodology of our proprietary technologies. The Specialist will have professional interaction with plant floor workers with regard to proper execution of work instructions developed for each unique installation. This position is responsible for interacting with all functional areas in the abattoir including slaughter, inspection, boning, slicing and packaging and QA. It is essential that the Plant Operations Specialist operate as a reliable teammate and consult with colleagues in areas such as technology demonstrations, installations, and ongoing customer support, while maintaining a harmonious working relationship within the work environment.

Responsibilities of this Salaried Position

- Work independently and with co-workers while frequently travelling locally and interstate to support our existing customers, and assist the sales team in setting up new opportunities
- Demonstrate unique knife skills and cutting techniques associated with the implementation of our processing technologies.
- Maintain friendly and professional relationships with plant laborers and foremen among our customer installations.
- Exercise initiative in promoting continuous improvement among customer personnel operating our licensed slaughter technologies.

The Ideal Applicant Has Developed the Following Skills and Capabilities:

- Minimum 10 years experience in the meat processing industry
- Experience slaughtering beef and inverted lamb
- Able to travel and be away on the road periodically, up to a week or two.
- Strong communications and interpersonal skills and a positive attitude while representing the Company are necessary for success
- A collaborative approach to problem solving
- Experience in slaughter, boning and slicing (butchering) and packaging of meat.

- Hygiene and cleaning of the slaughter, boning and slicing area, cool room and freezers
- Ensure all regulatory requirements as per the Public Health Act are met and that the Hazard Analysis Critical Control Points (HACCP) plan is adhered to in the performance of your duties.
- Attend to all clerical duties associated with the position, including internal and external ordering, HACCP, microbiology testing, acceptable quality level (AQL) monitoring, livestock records,
- Participates constructively and positively within the workplace teams to achieve productive outcomes
- The care and maintenance of all plant/machinery and equipment, abattoir buildings and surrounds.
- At all times be familiar with industrial safety policies and practices, ensuring the principles are adhered to in all areas of supervision.
- Thorough understanding of Humane practices in animal handling
- Abattoir, plant, machinery and equipment procedures and techniques used within the abattoir.
- Safe food handling procedures used in abattoir production and undertake such training as is required;
- Knife handling, procedures and techniques used in the performance of their work.
- Chemical handling procedures used in the course abattoir production and undertake such training as is required;

Long Term Career Opportunity

- Extensive training will be given as well as on going professional development
- Salary to be negotiated on experience
- This is a full time, long term career opportunity with a leading service provider to the meat industry.
- Extensive training will be given as well as on going professional development

If you are a motivated and highly skilled slaughterman or plant foreman, with self-confidence, strong communication skills, and a desire to move ahead in the meat industry, then we want to talk to you.

Resumes to admin@mpscinc.com
MPSC Australia Pty Ltd