

Feedlot Management Trainee

Rangers Valley Cattle Station operates a 32,000 head feedlot, farming and cattle backgrounding operation in the Northern Tablelands area of New South Wales. The company specialises in the production and marketing of high quality longfed beef for domestic and international markets.

A position has become available for someone looking to gain entry into the feedlot industry at the management level. No prior feedlot experience is required just a positive attitude to learn. You will work within all areas of the feedlot operation whilst taking on middle management responsibilities.

Key areas that will be covered are;

- Feedmill operation, maintenance and flaked grain production
- Ration mixing and delivery (including truck-loader operation)
- Feed allocation, management of cattle feeding system
- Pen riding, health monitoring, disease diagnosis and treatment
- Low stress stock handling of cattle
- Processing cattle for intake and sale
- Water quality and management
- Pen cleaning, manure management and feedlot maintenance
- Computer record keeping
- Quality control and safety
- Staff management
- Feedlot Quality Assurance programs

This is a hands on position, reporting to the feedlot manager, that requires dedication, commitment and integrity. There will certainly be some long hours, repetitious tasks and cold mornings, but heaps of new challenges at the same time. If you are a motivated self starter, have the ability to work as part of a team and want to make a career in this industry then this could be a great opportunity.

This is a salary position with onsite accommodation provided.
