

Chief Executive Officer

- World renowned premium marble beef operation
- Integrated 'whole of supply chain focus'
- International & domestic markets
- CEO to MD transition

Seldom does the opportunity arise to manage one of the world's most respected premium marbled beef operations. Rangers Valley has stood as a major contributor to the Australian agricultural industry since 1839. Purchased by the Marubeni Corporation in 1988, Rangers Valley currently specialises in long fed pure Black Angus and Wagyu cross breeds to bring the highest quality, best tasting, consistently tender and delicious beef, every time, for both the domestic and export markets.

Due to the impending retirement of the current Managing Director, Rangers Valley is currently seeking a highly motivated senior executive to manage the company's farm (5,000 ha), feedlot (32,000 head) and meat processing operations to the profitability and ROI expectations of its owners, Marubeni Corporation. In addition, the CEO will develop and manage the profitable marketing of Rangers Valley products and by-products to a range of key customers in over 20 countries, as well as working closely with the Marubeni Meat department for the marketing of products into Japan. A critical function is also to ensure all operations of Rangers Valley comply with relevant laws (local, state and federal) and represent the interests of Rangers Valley at appropriate industry and government forums.

This high profile, key role requires a senior professional with a strong red meat and livestock background and proven, high level business experience. Exposure to international branded meat marketing would be a distinct advantage, with experience in representing a business at industry and government events and forums, as well as media. With farming, processing, marketing and financial teams reporting to the CEO, strong leadership is essential, in having a well trained, effective and motivated team, proud to be part of such a respected organisation.

Key to the ongoing success of this role is a strong business relationship with Rangers Valley's owners, Marubeni Corporation, so prior experience in working or conducting successful business with Japanese organisations, and therefore having an appreciation and respect for the culture and style of business, will be crucial.

This role represents a rare opportunity in the agrifood industry and, based at Rangers Valley in northern NSW, large on-farm family home is provided. A senior level executive package is on offer and will be negotiated with the successful candidate.
