

Station Manager – Central Australia

Hewitt Cattle Australia is an innovative large scale beef cattle enterprise which operates throughout North Eastern & Central Australia.

HCA is currently seeking a manager for its recently acquired property in Central Australia of 1.6 million acres and 20,000 head of cattle.

HCA has an expansionary focus and prides itself on driving profitable growth. Initiatives are delivered across the company using best practice management combined with innovative thinking. This in turn fosters not only the success of our business, but the prosperity of our exceptional team.

Hewitt Cattle Australia strives for excellence in all areas of its business and understands the caliber of its people is what truly delivers results. If you are confident in your ability to manage a variety of people and skillsets, operate a large-scale beef cattle enterprise and drive continuous improvement programs to optimise production and operations, and you want to expand your own capabilities while doing so, then you will thrive in the kind of environment HCA can offer you.

This role will involve you working closely with and reporting to the Chief Operations Officer as well as working with the wider HCA Management Team. You will consider yourself an early adopter and also have a solid interest in developing and maintaining a strong approach to safe and progressive work practices.

A current fixed-wing or helicopter license would be beneficial but not essential.

Further details on the location, remuneration, accommodation and specifics of the role will be made available to those candidates who are shortlisted for the position.
