

Manager – Rawlinna Station

Western Nullarbor, WA

- Award winning property
- 100% Australian owned business
- Located in one of Australia's best pastoral climates

Who we are...

Jumbuck Pastoral are a fourth generation, family run Australian enterprise with large scale sheep and cattle stations throughout Australia. We seek an experienced Manager for "Rawlinna", located on the western side of the Nullarbor in Western Australia, 4 hours drive east of Kalgoorlie with additional access from the Indian Pacific train service via a stop at Rawlinna. The property covers just over 1,000,000ha and runs up to 65,000 Merino sheep in arguably one of the best pastoral climates in Australia. With an average rainfall of 228mm per year, the property regularly enjoys favourable winds from the west to assist the numerous mills and water points across the run. As a well-planned, maintained and resourced property, support is offered through two overseers and well-equipped crew. The comfortable, stone-built homestead offers a spacious 3-bedroom arrangement and comes fully furnished including internet and phone. Fully outfitted workshop and RFDS approved airstrip nearby.

About the job...

The Manager will be responsible for the development and delivery of the livestock program. You will also provide mentoring and training to staff, hold responsibility for the timely service and maintenance of station plant and equipment, waters and fences. The job receives direct administrative support from head office in areas such as HR and recruitment, purchasing and transport. You will also have a direct line of access to Directors.

About you...

As a successful Manager you will be hands-on, motivated and with experience managing pastoral properties. Your strong leadership and people management skills will be crucial to your success along with your pastoral knowledge, mechanical aptitude and organisational skills. A highly competitive salary package, commensurate with experience is available.
