

INNOVATION ADOPTION AND EXTENSION OFFICER

- Dynamic hands-on role
- Regional and national influence
- Covers the Kimberley and Pilbara Region

The Kimberley Pilbara Cattlemen's Association is a non-profit organisation representing primary producers in the north of Western Australia. Its mission is to maximise the value of the northern beef industry through accessing innovation, building capacity and achieving industry influence. The organisation seeks an Innovation, Adoption and Extension Officer to facilitate change throughout the northern cattle industry.

Reporting to the Chief Executive Officer, this position will drive innovation through the membership base of the KPCA. The key focus of the role will be to:

- Develop private member innovation and adoption strategies.
- Have input into the collective organisational research adoption strategy
- Liaise with Meat and Livestock Australia to inform, collaborate and bring benefit to producers in our region.
- Liaise with the Department of Primary Industry and Regional Development and other regional research committees to streamline priorities and funding.
- Facilitate collaboration of research organisations in the region
- Communicate innovative technologies/opportunities to members and the broader pastoral industry.

The role suits a passionate and energetic individual keen to make a difference and enable the industry to capture the opportunities in front of it. It is likely you will have a background in agribusiness with tertiary qualifications in Agricultural Science, Animal Science or equivalent. A high skill level for communication and the ability to collaborate with a range of stakeholders will be required.

For information please email Wendy at kpcarecruitment@gmail.com

Applications close 6th of October, 2017

Proudly Supported by;

Proudly Supported by;

