Assistant Farm Manager

Lawson Grains is Australia's leading corporate grain farmer through investments in people, environments and best practice. We are passionate about farming with the experience and knowledge to lead the way in corporate agriculture.

We have permanent positions available at our Jerry South and Walyoo aggregations in Western Australia for a committed person who possesses a passion for the agricultural industry.

Reporting to the Farm Manager, this position requires the successful applicant to have sound knowledge and experience in dry-land farming.

The following experience and qualities are essential;

- Experience in performing and overseeing all aspects of broad acre cropping farms including crop production, grain handling and the operation and maintenance of all associated plant and machinery
- A positive attitude towards modern precision agriculture, variable rate and controlled traffic farming techniques
- Demonstrated people management and leadership skills
- Competent business reporting and computer skills
- Attention for detail in all aspects of farming operations
- Drivers & HC Licence (desirable)

Lawson Grains offers a supportive and inclusive culture and fosters career development and progression, encouraging internal transfers and/or promotions throughout the business.

Attractive remuneration package including housing, utilities and work vehicle will be negotiated with the successful applicant. Your application should include a resume, two references and a cover letter.

If you have the above skills and experience and you are looking for your next opportunity, please apply via our website www.lawsongrains.com or feel free to contact Robyn Heap on 0439 414 295 if you have any questions.
