About the role

The Livestock Supervisor role is critical to ensuring all our cattle handling, treatment, processing and movement is undertaken safely, effectively and to the highest possible standards of animal health and animal welfare best practice. Each day will present a variety of new challenges as you coordinate livestock with your team of stock persons. You will be required to keep up to date with industry regulations and compliance requirements and maintain a careful watch over the health and welfare of all livestock. The person we are looking for must be a team player who will have meticulous attention to detail, have a passion for working with cattle and the ability to handle stock in a quiet and calm manner. The role requires a person who will effectively plan, oversee and manage the day to day livestock operation ensuring all requirements are met which includes but is not limited too; Drafting cattle into required lines, Loadout and induction scheduling, protocoling, management of all livestock data/scan files and livestock movements and ensuring all livestock administration and NLIS management is maintained.

To be eligible for this role you will have a minimum 5 years livestock experience within an intensive feedlot/live export depot environment

The successful candidate will share our passion for cattle, be a committed team player who takes full ownership and accountability in their role as well as an uncompromising approach to working safely and ensuring quality results. You will be a hands-on leader who can successfully build and maintain a high performing livestock crew.

The Livestock supervisor will be rewarded with:

- Private Homestead (Suitable for a family) located onsite
- A permanent position with attractive remuneration
- Work vehicle
- Career progression opportunities
- Tailored external and internal training and career map
- Opportunity to work for an industry leader

This role is with one of Australia's fastest-growing agribusinesses and there will be great long-standing career prospects and professional growth opportunities on offer for candidates as we continue our growth.
