Summary: NFP industry-owned organisation, AUSMEAT is at the forefront of shaping the Australian red meat sector. They are seeking a new CEO to continue the strategic vision.

Chief Executive Officer

- Internationally regarded organisation
- Influence the strategic vision of the industry
- Purpose-driven NFP culture

A not-for-profit industry-owned organisation with its origins dating back 30 years, AUS-MEAT has been at the forefront of shaping Australia's red meat industry. A joint venture between Australian Meat Processor Corporation and Meat & Livestock Australia, its three cornerstones are integrity, industry support and standards maintaining prominence. The driving force behind the success of the Australian red meat sector, this organisation is universally recognised and regarded as an international market leader. Socially and ethically responsible, operating under globally recognised standards and systems, the business has also diversified into broader agricultural services. Now with the impending departure of the incumbent, the organisation is looking to appoint a new CEO.

Reporting to the Board, this role will see you manage, lead, empower, and mentor your senior leadership team. You will passionately engage all stakeholders while implementing and executing the strategic business plan. Leading by example, proactively managing the purpose-driven culture, you will leverage multiple key relationships across industry groups and government, imparting a clear vision of the future while ensuring your team are equipped to execute at the highest level.

Previous experience in the red meat sector is essential, as is exposure to government and international trading partners. Utilising your consultative and well-honed influencing skills, you will be excited about the opportunity to build upon a purpose-driven organisation, creating solutions for complex situations. Tertiary qualified in economics, agricultural / meat science or equivalent is essential. However, it will be your ability to passionately engage and influence the hearts and minds of others in the vision and journey which will provide you with ultimate satisfaction.
