

A MESSAGE FROM JBS AUSTRALIA

JBS has a long and proud history of growing its Australian businesses, investing heavily in our local operations and domestic brands to support Australian agriculture and employment of more than 11,000 Australians.

Since our first investment in Australia in 2007, the business has grown to support $700 million in annual wages and $3.5 billion in annual local livestock and procurement purchases – directly benefiting thousands of local producers, the local communities in which we operate and the broader Australian economy.

JBS has an uncompromising commitment to the highest animal welfare standards

Our approach to animal welfare is based on the 'Five Freedoms,' the globally recognised gold standard for animal welfare. High animal welfare standards are an integral part of our culture. We continually strive to meet and exceed government regulatory requirements and our customer and community expectations.

Sustainability is at the heart of our strategy

Earlier this year, we became the first global meat and poultry company to publicly commit to achieve net zero greenhouse gas emissions across our entire value chain by 2040. To support this commitment, we are investing around $1.4 billion over the next decade in greenhouse gas emission reduction projects across our operations. We are proud to help lead the global fight against climate change.

From the highest animal welfare standards to meeting the challenge of climate change, JBS will continue to do business the right way for the benefit of producers, consumers and our shared society.

Brent Eastwood
JBS Australia CEO

For more information on JBS and our global sustainability initiatives, please visit:
www.jbsfoodsgroup.com/our-purpose/sustainability