

Veterinarians – Griffith and Sydney

Client

Our client is a privately owned Australian Company providing premium quality poultry products throughout Australia. The company supplies premium poultry products throughout Queensland, New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia and Western Australia. Due to continued expansion, they would now like to employ an additional Poultry Veterinarian.

Role

The primary purpose of this role is to achieve and maintain the highest production efficiency possible through excellent bird health and quality. There is a strong focus on biosecurity, food safety, humane care and environmental stewardship. This is an excellent opportunity to join a highly respected organization and become a high-level contributor to the overall success of the business. There is also opportunity for regional, interstate and international travel to gain experience and for career progression. New or recent veterinary graduates are encouraged to apply and will be mentored and well supported.

Key responsibilities

- Reviewing the health status of chicken meat breeder and meat chicken farms in the Griffith region
- Using KPI and performance data and information to investigate health and/or performance-related challenges and identifying opportunities for improvement
- Involvement in developing biosecurity, vaccination, animal welfare and health programs
- Assisting to manage animal welfare compliance and continuous improvement across farming, hatchery and processing operations
- Contributing as an integral part of our national veterinary and livestock management team
- Liaising with other company and industry veterinarians and maintaining key business relationships

Requirements

- An Australian recognised veterinary degree and ability to register to practice as a veterinarian in all Australian states
- Poultry or other livestock industry experience is preferred but is not essential.
- Highly motivated with excellent communication skills, strong commitment to work related responsibilities and ability to work both independently and in a team environment

- Must be an Australian citizen or permanent resident
- The successful candidate must not have any pigs, pet birds or poultry at their place of residence or reside with anyone who has any contact with these species or their manure. Veterinarians will also be required to be vaccinated with the seasonal influenza A vaccine

Remuneration and Location

Ample training, mentoring and opportunities for continuing education will be provided and supported. Remuneration is negotiable depending on level of experience but will be well in excess of the current veterinary award. The salary package will include a fully maintained company vehicle, phone and all required equipment. Registration fees and professional memberships, including Australian Veterinary Association membership, will be financed. There are two roles available, one will be located at Griffith in New South Wales and the other in Sydney, New South Wales.

To Apply

Please apply online on our website at www.agri.com.au or on Seek.

Please note the requirements for the role, including the ability to be registered to practice as a veterinarian in Australia, and applicants must be Australian citizens or Permanent Residents.

Please contact me for a confidential discussion if required, Dr. Ray Johnson, Senior Agribusiness Consultant and Managing Director, Agricultural Appointments, on ray@agri.com.au or mobile 0419 012 841.