

Field Officer Position

Tooraweenah Prime Lamb Marketing Cooperative (TPLMC) comprises around 80 lamb producers located in the central west of NSW.

Our business has primarily been to market members lambs produced to specification to meat processors. TPLMC has recently expanded its horizons to incorporate cattle and sheep trading as a key part of its operations with much of the trading occurring on electronic platforms.

TPLMC is seeking the services of a field officer to further enhance our production and marketing. The field officer would possess or develop skills in sheep assessing and work with members on producing lambs to specification and assist our livestock procurement manager in all aspects of livestock trading including cattle.

The position requires periodic reporting on production issues, the facilitation of field days, communication of market information and occasional assistance with business administration.

TPLMC markets lambs directly to meat processors and provides feedback to members. It has an enviable track record of producing lambs to specification in all production conditions. TPLMC has been involved with initiatives to value add our products and is always open to exploring innovative marketing alternatives toward the goal of growing our business and maximizing value for our members.
