

Executive Officer

Client

Our client is the national body that represents the interests of producers and traders of rendered products in Australia. It has a diversified membership that includes independent rendering operations, integrated abattoir processors, marketers, and traders of rendered products and associated services, equipment, and logistics providers to the Australian rendering industry. The activities of the organisation include aspects of local and international agribusiness, including the pet food, aqua feed, stock feed, and renewable fuel industries.

Role

The group is now looking for a new Executive Officer (EO) to fill a retirement vacancy. The EO is the public and political face of the organisation and plays a pivotal leadership role. This role will oversee the affairs of the organisation, provide a range of member services and technical support for committees, industry stakeholders and Government regulators, and will require experience in building and continuing relationships at member, board, and governmental levels.

Key responsibilities

- Manage the business, including AGM's, symposiums, and Board meetings
- Provide technical support for all working sub-committees
- Maintain regular contact with the relevant key Government regulators and other stakeholders
- Maintain the records and manage industry compliance and associated audit programs including the requirements of export listings
- Develop any required industry initiatives and standards including overseas delegates
- Effectively represent the organisation on various industry work groups and meetings

Requirements

- Exceptional interpersonal and negotiation skills
- A minimum of 10 years in agribusiness management
- The ability to collaborate with and influence multiple level stakeholders including ARA members, Federal and State government departments, key organisations, and other peak bodies.

Remuneration and Location

A senior management remuneration is on offer to attract the right person to this crucial role. Location is completely flexible.
