

Livestock Export Operations Support

Southern Australian international Livestock Services (SAILS) is a family-owned Australian business and among the largest exporters of livestock in our country. We export only the highest of quality livestock by sea predominantly to China.

This is an ideal opportunity for someone who has a passion for livestock along with excellent stock handling and husbandry skills. Your attention to detail in this position is paramount. You will need to have the capacity to handle data including recording and reading figures, ability to follow processes and have excellent interpersonal skills that will see you liaising with a wide range of people from farmers, agents, suppliers, and shipping staff. A major point of focus in this position is that you have the ability to work to a firm deadline and have the ability to handle responsibility in a high-pressure environment.

A large element of this position will involve managing, coordinating and performing the cattle processes while the cattle are in the pre-export quarantine. This will involve extended periods of time at our quarantine facility at Portland or elsewhere.

The requirements of this role include, but are no way limited to:

- A strong and flexible work ethic with ability to independently manage responsibilities in a professional and fast paced business.
- Sound livestock handling and animal husbandry skills from genuine experience in the cattle industry.
- A strong attention to detail and ability to accurately maintain livestock records and data.
- Sound computer skills including proficiency in the Microsoft office suite.
- Strong interpersonal and problem-solving skills while working within a team.
- The ability to communicate written and verbally with a wide range of stakeholders including government and industry bodies, suppliers, and clients.
- An appreciation and basic understanding of foreign cultures, customs, and requirements.
- The ability to undertake regular domestic travel that will include irregular work periods and time away from home including weekends. International travel may be required from time to time.
- An ability to understand and adapt quickly to strict compliance requirements involved in the livestock export industry to ensure compliance.
- A strong focus on managing inventory and data.
- Previous experience with compliance and auditing systems within the livestock industry is desired. Experience with the NLIS database is desired.

This is a position that offers the opportunity to experience the whole livestock export chain while developing and progressing your career within the live export industry.
