

FEEDLOT LIVESTOCK SUPERVISOR

Lead People. Drive Livestock Performance.

Carpenter Beef is seeking an experienced and motivated Feedlot Livestock Supervisor to join our growing livestock team.

Reporting directly to the Feedlot Manager, this is a hands-on leadership role responsible for overseeing cattle induction, livestock processing, animal welfare outcomes and day-to-day livestock operations.

We are looking for someone who is passionate about cattle, committed to low stress stock handling, and enjoys developing people and building strong teams.

About the Role

As Feedlot Livestock Supervisor, you will:

- Lead and supervise daily livestock operations.
- Coordinate cattle receivals, induction and processing activities.
- Train and mentor staff in low stress stock handling techniques. Champion animal welfare and livestock performance outcomes.
- Ensure compliance with regulations and company systems.
- Support livestock health programs and cattle management activities.
- Maintain accurate livestock records and traceability systems.
- Work closely with the Feedlot Manager to drive operational excellence.

What We Offer

- Competitive remuneration package.
- Work vehicle and dedicated office space provided.
- Laptop and mobile phone provided.
- Ongoing training and professional development opportunities.
- Opportunity to work within a progressive and growing beef production business.

About You

You will ideally have:

- Experience working within feedlot, cattle station or intensive livestock operations.
- Strong practical cattle handling skills.
- Demonstrated leadership or supervisory experience.
- A sound understanding of animal welfare principles.
- Experience applying low stress stock handling techniques.
- Strong communication and organisational skills.
- A proactive attitude and commitment to continuous improvement.
- A supportive team environment with a strong focus on safety, animal welfare and operational excellence.
